Press release: Forbidden book published again

Non-fiction thriller The Cover-up General (De doofpotgeneraal) was banned last year by court order. Author Edwin F. Giltay recounted his experiences regarding a turf war within the Dutch military secret service. The espionage scandal was linked to the disappearance of footage depicting Srebrenica war crimes.

The book ban was overturned by an appeals court and hence the second, revised edition will be published by De Blauwe Tijger publishers. Edwin Giltay: 'A former intelligence agent tried to cover-up The Cover-up General, but I am not easily shut up.'

At the presentation on Friday September 16th, the first copy will be presented to investigative journalist Philip Dröge, MA.

Launch De doofpotgeneraal
Friday September 16th, 5 PM
Boekhandel Scheltema
Rokin 9, Amsterdam

De doofpotgeneraal
By Edwin F. Giltay
€19,50 | 263 pages
ISBN 978-94-92161-21-5
www.dedoofpotgeneraal.nl/english.htm

'A good observation of a sad internal struggle within the army command' / * — Nieuwe Revu (Dutch opinion weekly)

'I read the book and can recommend it to everyone. It's very thrilling.' — Harry van Bommel, Member of Parliament

'Evokes the atmosphere of Graham Greene's famous Our man in Havana, yet situated in Delft in the offices of an internet provider …'
— Christ Klep Ph.D., military historian

Not for publication

For press copies (in Dutch) and interview requests, please contact publisher Tom Zwitser: 06-40862901 | tomzwitser@gmail.com.

De Blauwe Tijger Publishers
Postbus 2078
9704 CB Groningen (NL)